Synopsis

Jim Marlowe's Martian pet, Willis, seems like nothing more than an adorable ball of fur with an uncanny ability to imitate the human voice. But Jim's devotion to the little creature will soon lead Jim and his pal Frank into a death-defying trek across Mars. Their journey of wonders—including an encounter with the mysterious ancients of Mars—ends when they are plunged into the midst of a dangerous rebellion.

Heinlein's 1949 novel of a space frontier culture is brought to life with Full Cast Audio's signature quality of talented voices and an evocative musical score. The colonists live a fragile existence on Mars as they try to survive without offending the native Martians while satisfying the Corporation's hunger for profit. But greed throws this delicate balance off, and young Jim and Frank with their Martian friend, Willis, must negotiate their way among the opposing groups in order to keep their families safe and the Martians content. The masterful William Dufris, director and main narrator, pulls listeners into the stories with his deep, smooth voice. The energetic cast provides colorful voices for the quirky characters without overacting. The musical score helps with transitions as well as setting the mood and declaratively ending a scene. Review of book: "A fascinating story of Earth-humans on Mars . . . the most thrilling and tingling kind of science fiction story by an experienced hand." --Kirkus
Review of book: "Readers young and old will enjoy this fastmoving adventure novel." --Chicago Tribune

These Full Cast Audio books are wonderfully done. Using actors for the dialogue adds life to the tale, and draws you in even more than the normal audio reading. And this story is a classic Heinlein tale. Plucky kids spark a revolution against the manipulative and greedy colonial government. The mystery of the Martians and their society adds to the excitement and unpredictability of the story.

One of my favorite books from school years. Glad it was available as CD. Had a spot on one of the CDs that was bad. Company sent out replacement. I would use them again.
