Customer Reviews

Knock Knock is an award-winning purveyor of witty books and gifts. Our mission is to create products that bring humor, function, organization, and design to everyday life.

Sometimes it can be difficult to find time in the day to get my husband's opinion on certain matters. He enjoys gaming as a hobby and stress relief and I don't want to bother him while he is "in the zone". He also works in a field which is shift work and he can be called upon at any hour to come in if there's an emergency. I just fill out one page and leave an extra page for my husband on his desk with a post it note attached stating that it would be nice if he could complete the form in X amount of days. After he fills out his page, we get together and share which makes the decision process move a lot faster, with more research into the topic, and is more organized. The paper is pretty thick and the back of the page is blank. I tested the paper while writing my review going back and forth over the same line a few times. None of my pens (gel and ballpoint), highlighters, or markers bleed through except sharpies. If you don't have much time in the day or you or your spouse is on shift work it can make things a lot easier, but I don't think it is a necessity. A piece of notebook paper with a pro-con list would probably work just fine. The layout of this pad just makes it easier for my husband which makes my husband less stressed which makes me happy so I think it's worth it.

This product is not at all a necessity, but I absolutely LOVE how it helps me organize my thoughts when facing challenge decisions. I tend to way overthink things and have taken to making my own decision tables, but I love that this pad does it for me, and all I have to do is fill in the blanks! I can also offer it to others to read over and keep my mind in check ;) Furthermore, the witty little remarks throughout the page lighten the mood when critically analyzing the life out of your situation.

i enjoy most of the knock knock pads, they are entertaining with a touch of sarcasm which is right up my alley. I'm kind of an indecisive person myself sometimes...well I think I am, well maybe not....just kidding! while this could be used purely for entertainment purposes I think that if you actually filled the whole thing out it could actually help you make a decision. My listing the pros & cons and identifying your gut feeling (always go with the gut!) it could actually point you in one direction over the other

This is a great gift for anyone you know who has difficulty making decisions. Got a laugh!

OK, decision making is not for all people. Some just freak out when the simplest of decisions needs to be made "what would you like for dinner?"This pad puts the thought process on paper. Is this really important? Will this cause a major crisis elsewhere? This really clears the air in a humored way to make the decision process easier. We are using this as a family to help those who freeze at making decisions. I am thrilled with how much easier it is for those who just look at me with the "deer in the headlights" type of look when asked a simple question that requires a decision. We're moving forward! Thanks, Knock Knock for making this fun, funny and simplifying the thought process.

I have used a similar decision chart in my life and gave these as graduation gifts along with another book and Bible. Students liked the layout and many said they would be using this decision chart in college. The pad is made with thick paper and pages are removed easily. It came wrapped in cellophane.

This is an simple, interesting way to "make a decision." I thought it was just for fun, at first, but I found it to be extremely helpful.

I made my own "Problem Solver" form a few years back. This is similar and pretty cool. It helps when you can't "Think outside the box" on decisions or problems.
