Customer Reviews

Not a bad read though I wasn't wrapped in it. Even for a May December romance, the age difference was a great deal...twenty five years. The two older women weren't particularly likeable and a bit predatory to me. Sophie, the young woman, seemed too immature to be hooking up with someone that age. I don't know how many times she stuttered and blushed, and it became annoying after a while. If she an assertive personality then the age difference wouldn't have seemed like such a yawning gap. The love story between Kate and Sophie seemed rushed---they didn't even have a date and the book ended without any intimacy except for one kiss. Very vanilla.

However the author does have a nice style and is easy to read. 3.5 stars

Yannis is a man of means and money who loves the new, exciting and different in all his projects. He relies on Kate, the tough as nails owner of the British, Red Door marketing firm for all his advertising needs. Kate is use to Yannis's quirks and has come to expect the unexpected but this time Yannis has gone too far! He wants, no demands that she works with her equally tough American counterpart Georgina. Add in cute as a button Sophie and things really get interesting. This is the first book of Ms. Radley's that I have had the pleasure to read. I found the complexity of the characters intriguing. They were well thought out and defined. It is impossible for me to choose a favourite character, they are all loveable. I really liked watching Sophie grow in her personal and professional lives. I couldn't help but to picture TV's Supergirl's alter ego Kara in the role of Sophie, it made the book even more real to me. Georgina and Kate are also really great characters. The way they interact with each other is a mix of funny and frustrating. It sure took them long enough to get their act together but it is so worth the wait. This is a very good book and I can't wait to read more from this author!

I am absolutely love this book this book, I couldn't wait to finally start reading it and with a lot of spare time on my hands this was exactly what I needed. After reading other books from this author I didn't know what to expect since her previous books (Flight Series more a cute romance and Huntress more from the fun mystery crime department) I was excited to see what's next. In this book's different type of woman clash together. We have the two very successful advertising company heads Kate from Red Door and Georgina from Mastery, what happens when they fight for the same job? It all starts with a request by the very ambitious but sometimes little naive Yannis who wants to promote some luxury cars who spends already lots of money with Kates company but wants to extend to get the best possible in Europe and America. He starts the little war between both of our Ladies who try to be better and oust the competition and win over Yannis for themselves. Then it's time to make the chaos complete and bring in another woman, here we have former intern Sophie who is now on the one hand Kates assistant but also kind of a spy on Georgina. If you mix in some romantic feelings than it gets crazy, but the good kind of crazy. I went thru different emotions there were moments I rooted for Kate and others I was totally for Georgina. The story is a perfect combination of fun, love and amazingly well written. Lots of people probably can relate to Sophie having feelings that haven't been there before, on top of this for very successful woman are hard for everyone. I couldn't put the book down because I wanted to know how it is going on, it cost me a night but it was so worth it. I'm very excited to see what's next for A. R. Radley.

All of my reviews are for lesbian romance novels, they can all be found at The Romantic Reader Blog. Mergers and Acquisitions by A.E. Radley takes us into the cutthroat world of advertising. This book is filled with tension, rivalry, unexpected friendships and of course, romance. The book starts off introducing the reader to Red Door a UK marketing firm owned by Kate Kennedy. This business is Kate's life. She pours her heart and soul into keeping Red Door as the top advertising agency in Europe. Along the way, she has made some enemies, but not bigger and thornier than Georgina Masters, her American rival. As one of their mutual clients, Yannis Papadakis, the CEO of an engine manufacturing company, wants the two companies to collaborate on the marketing campaign for his latest creation, a supercar. Georgina and Kate can barely stand to be in the same room together, much less work intimately on a campaign of this magnitude. Now add in the unexpected factor, an adorable, preppy nerd named Sophie Young. Sophie has just accepted a new position at Red Door after completing her internship. A gopher, running errands and fixing the copy machine is not exactly what she planned on, but she's at Red Door and that's what counts. All of the sudden, as Kate's assistant, is injured and out of commission for a while, Sophie is now the right hand to her marketing idol, Kate. This book is fun, witty and adorable. I had no idea which way this book was going to take me, and I loved it. Each character is interesting and loveable in their own right. You don't want to miss this one, heck if you have read any of A.E. Radley's books you know it's quality stuff.
