Customer Reviews

These are well made, but not the best flash cards. It is not good to have one word on each side because it makes it hard to sort words into "known" and "learning" stacks. Also, the white letters on a color background can be hard to see.

Kids learn these flash cards in order of Fry list. It does not have all the Fry words but has most of the first 150. They are not numbered by their Fry number. It would have been super helpful if they have been. It took hours to sort that out and write on the cards the Fry number. That way we can practice the Fry words in order the teacher tells us. Other than that, these are thick, sturdy cards. They are not laminated but if you did, they would surely last through years of kid use if you have multiple kids.

Our toddler LOVES these. They're well made and are in attention-span-appropriate bright colors.

She's a adorably odd child who has always been interested in words and letters, loves books but isn't so sure about reading on her own yet... but she's two so I'm hardly concerned. She will flip through (and fling all over the room) a few cards and get really excited when she sees a word she recognizes. Highly recommend.

This is a great help for my beginner reader. Every day we do a card or two and my kids are actually retaining what we practice. Very happy about this and highly recommend.

Words are very visible

My son loves these flashcards. He's 4 and we're halfway through them. I actually purchased these twice after losing the first set. That's how much I like them!

In only 20 days my son learn to read all this cards and I try to do 5 different cards each day but since they are so full of life my son (4yrs old) got hooked with this flashcards. Now I'm planning on buying the Spanish sight cards so my son can increase his Spanish and I know he will. Flash Kids Flash Cards are awesome.
