Cesar Bartolini grew up in Buenos Aires where he studied at the Gato Dumas Culinary School. After graduating Cesar moved to Ireland and worked as Chef de Partie at Clontarf Castle Hotel, then honed his culinary skills across a number of respected Argentinian and UK kitchens, until becoming head chef at Gordon Ramsay's Plane Food bar & restaurant at Heathrow airport.

Recently returned from a trip to Argentina and was tickled to find this cook book which I love to browse more for the memories than the cooking. Have made several dishes that turned out great!

This is a lovely book. Not only does it include great traditional recipes but it also gives a brief background on the traditions and the popular ingredients. Loved it!

My friends were here from Argentina when the book arrived. They looked at the recipes and even prepared a few of them. They tasted just like Mom used to make back home in Buenos Aires. Delightful!

Girlfriend spent about a year in Argentina for college and was ecstatic when she opened this "on accident" before Christmas.

bought this for my daughter, she loves it.

Excellent

Enjoying the Recipes !
